Brazil floods, mudslides

Rotary districts in Brazil are mobilizing to bring emergency relief to thousands of victims after heavy rains 12-13 January caused deadly floods and mudslides in mountain communities north of Rio de Janeiro.

The death toll from Brazil's worst natural disaster in decades has exceeded 740 and could reach 1,000, according to government officials. Rivers of mud and rock ripped through towns, causing widespread devastation and leaving more than 14,000 people homeless. Hundreds remain missing or trapped on mountain slopes and riverbanks.

Districts 4600, 4650, and 4750 are initiating collection campaigns. Food, water, clothing, milk powder, mattresses, and bed linens are among the relief goods needed.

Updates will be posted at www.rotary.org as they become available.
